Assuming that what the university now plans to offer is only on pension and financial issues, the obvious areas where we could conceivably organise something are a panel talking about different plans and experiences of retirement, and some explanation and discussion of what the university offers to those who wish to remain in some way part of the university. The latter could include information about Suss Ex. I wonder whether someone from the medical school on health issues in later life might also be of value? I think the whole area is one where it could be very useful to attempt some systematic assessment of member and prospective member opinion.
